

Cassons given call up by Burnley FC

Premier League new boys Burnley have appointed Cassons as their new accountants.

Cassons will support the club by carrying out the audit and providing tax, financial and general business advice.

Carlton Cooper, partner at Cassons, said: "Cassons has its roots in Burnley and there's an immense amount of pride among our employees that we have been appointed by the club.

"Obviously we are taking up this role at a very exciting time in Burnley's history following the club's recent promotion to the Premier League. From a personal point of view – as a lifelong Burnley supporter and a season ticket holder – this is a very special day for Cassons."

Under the agreement Rossendale-based Cassons will also assist the club in preparing and completing financial reports to the football authorities and provide ongoing support to Turf Moor's new Financial Controller, Steve Cook.

Burnley FC Director Mr Clive Holt: "We are very pleased to welcome back Cassons as the club auditors and tax advisors. They are a growing local company, with many employees who are Clarets fans, and we look forward to working with them."

Cassons have also been appointed to work for Burnley Football Club in the Community, a charitable organisation linked to the club, established to promote local community participation in recreation. Cassons will prepare and audit the financial statements of the charity and provide financial advice.
