Nobuhle's Story

Medica Health International is looking to raise funds to support the treatment of a young Albino Zululand woman who has been suffering excruciating pain and hardship following her 11 year battle with a septic sarcoma.

Five months ago the Government hospital discharged her with some ibuprofen and told her to go home. Her prognosis was terrible. So desperate was her mother, to hear the cries and suffering of her daughter that she walked into a medical cannabis clinic in South Africa and begged for something to help her daughter. When Bob Greenhash met Nobuhle she asked if he could give her something to die. He could not bear the thought of her pain and suffering and so sponsored her with treatment of cannabis oil. After 5 months he recognised that the skin would not be healed by this product alone and got in touch with holistic clinic Earthberry who use non-invasive Theragem Technologies in their therapies.

Nobuhle received funding to get on a bus, alone, and travel miles and miles from home. She arrived in George with nothing, just the clothes she stood up in. Earthberry found local accommodation, provided food and toiletries and have put a call out for clothing. They have been treating her for a month with impressive positive results however they have depleted their initial funding costs and so have put out a further appeal. Medica Health Int have picked up this story and created a Go Fund Me page to help Earthberry continue to support this young girl.

The description of her condition is graphic and very distressing, her skin was infested with maggots, she couldn't eat, or sleep, the stench of her flesh is unbearable, so we must admire the capacity for the Earthberry team to care and support Nobuhle and try to provide her with a solution, and some comfort in a time of extreme pain and suffering. We ask that you challenge yourself to look at her Go Fund me page, top read the story on Facebook and to ask your readership/viewers to help.
